

TEXAS
Health and Human Services

Youth Suicide Prevention for Parents

Start Early When it Comes to Talking About Mental Health

- Asking your kids how they feel about different events helps them see you as someone they can talk to.

How to Talk to Your Youth

- Stay calm and choose a good time and space.
- Lead with love and check your own feelings.
- Be patient, listen more than you speak and thank them.
- Look for help together.

When it's a Crisis

Be ready to ask, "Are you having thoughts of suicide?" The question will not put the thought into their head.

Reassure them and say, "I love you and I am here for you. We will get through this together."

Quick Tips and Resources

- Mental health is like physical health – your youth deserves both.
- Make it normal for your family to talk about feelings.
- Watch for signs and symptoms with your youth's mental and emotional health.

- Never stop checking in.
- If a youth is in crisis or talks about suicide, don't wait. Call the 988 Suicide and Crisis Lifeline or 9-1-1 if the danger is imminent.
- Keep crisis hotline numbers, suicide hotline numbers and mental health services numbers in your phone for your own family and others.

Resources

- 988 Suicide and Crisis Lifeline: 24/7/365, English and Spanish
- Crisis Text Line: Text TX to 741-741
- Visit the County Services Search Page: texashhs.org/countyservicessearchpage
- The Suicide Prevention wallet card is available in PDF format:
Download the English version: texashhs.org/preventionwalletcard
Download the Spanish version: texashhs.org/prevenciondelsuicidio
- Visit the HHS Youth Suicide Prevention Page: texashhs.org/youthsuicideprevention